Raise your Basketball IQ with Back2Basix

We have what is right for you, choose from Individual, Small Group & Team Instruction

Our Philosophy

With the right development, every student athlete can reach their full potential. That potential carries over from sports to business to personal relationships. I'm living proof of that...

We at Back2Basix believe that our coaching provides our participants the fundamental skills to raise their game. If your student athlete is going to be playing in a league, middle school or high school you will not want your child to miss the opportunity to improve their basketball IQ.

Leadership

Coach Thomas Turner has 20 years experience playing the game of basketball. He is a Certified Personal Trainer and has First Aid certification. He has coached, held, and worked with youth basketball camps in North Carolina for the past 15 years.

Individual Instruction

Allows the student athlete and the instructor to focus on improving every aspect of their basketball IQ in a one on one basis.

Small Group Workouts (2-4 student athletes)

Allows the student athletes and the instructor to focus on improving every aspect of their basketball IQ in a small group setting as well as creating competition and socializing with other kids who have the same interest.

Large Group/Team Workouts (5 or more)

Allows the student athletes and the instructor to focus on improving every aspect of their basketball IQ in a larger setting as well as focusing on basic offensive and defensive sets.

Schedule

Every day will consist of teaching fundamental basketball skills led by a proven college player/coach. These teachings will improve their offensive and defensive skills that will carry over to organized game play.
